

Tufts
UNIVERSITY

Friedman School
of Nutrition Science and Policy

Tufts University/USDA Master of Science Fellowships in Sustainable Sciences

The Agriculture, Food and Environment (AFE) Program at the Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy at Tufts University invites applications for the class of 2007 “Sustainable Science Fellows”. Selected Fellows will receive a tuition waiver for all 16 credits required for the Master of Science degree (two years of coursework) and may be eligible for additional stipend support. These fellowships, supported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Tufts University, are dedicated to support Fellows from traditionally underrepresented populations.

Applicants for Fellowships, as well as general admission, are encouraged to apply by January 15, 2007.

The mission of the AFE Program is to educate future leaders at the nexus of agriculture, food, and environmental science and policy, and empower them by providing rigorous training, an ethic of social change, and an intellectual community generating visions and models of alternative systems. Further information on the AFE program is found at: <<http://nutrition.tufts.edu/afe>>.